The guardianship statute specifically for adults with developmental disabilities and the Uniform Probate Code has been merged to create proposed legislation with updates to guardianship and conservatorship. This legislation will be presented again this year. Amy shared a fact sheet with talking points to Council members. Of note, person-centered planning, least restrictive alternatives such as supported decision-making plans or power of attorney are to be considered if those options would meet the person's needs. The proposed legislation also specifies that guardians cannot present unnecessary barriers to communication and visitation for the person under guardianship without the Court's approval of such restrictions. The statute changes emphasize the importance that individuals under guardianship or conservatorship do not become isolated, which could lead to greater neglect and/or abuse.
