8.	2022 Youth Survey and Tour <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Review of Survey 	Review of Survey Results: Modification for 2022: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> We revised the questions that are actionable. Questions that are valuable to IDJC. New questions-LGBTQI+, and a Native American category. Mental health questions were this time; 2/3 of the youth answered yes, and diagnosed with some sort of behavioral health issue. Standard questions asked: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Five questions about home life that could be addressed during aftercare. Over 80% of the youth answered that their home is a safe place. McDonald suggested the next statewide tour include the following questions: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> What is safe in your words? Is that physical or mental safety? Is there substance use or abuse in the home? Do you know if the prescribed drugs in the house misused? In this year's survey, 90% of the youth reported using tobacco or vaping. To know the age of first use might be more valuable rather than current use Other interesting results: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Inhalant was used by 1/3 of the youth More youth reported using drugs for themselves than for their siblings or parents Youth used most often with their friends Some reported using with their parents 40% reported a concern with the home life. The next biggest challenge would be friends. Girls seemed to report more issues before detention or custody than boys. The survey supports the need to have gender specific programs. Girls reported a higher substance use in the home and their own use. 	Tedd McDonald
